

JEFF HIGH DISTRICT PICKETS MARCH

An informational picket line was set up at all six Jefferson Union High School District schools by three JHSD employee unions Monday to press for a new contract for the American Federation of Teachers Local 1481. One of the teachers' main demands is for a 7 percent pay increase. The AFT pickets were joined by district locals of the California School Employees Association and American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, representing the district's classified workers. Pickets shown here are marching in front of Jefferson High School in Daly City. The unions have planned to picket before school opens on six weekdays. The classified unions said they supported the teachers because the larger AFT must conclude its long-stalled negotiations before the other two can settle on new contracts. The AFT chapter will meet at 3 p.m. Monday to consider "direct action" according to the progress of current negotiations.

Boy Drowns Off Oyster Point

A 14-year-old South San Francisco boy drowned off the Oyster Point Marina Saturday afternoon, police reported Monday.

The youth, Jose Refugio Ibarra, 558 Grand Ave., had been swimming at the beach with friends when he disappeared under the surface at about 12:45 p.m. Saturday. His body was recovered about 75 yards off the shore about two hours later by divers from the San Mateo County Sheriff's Department rescue team.

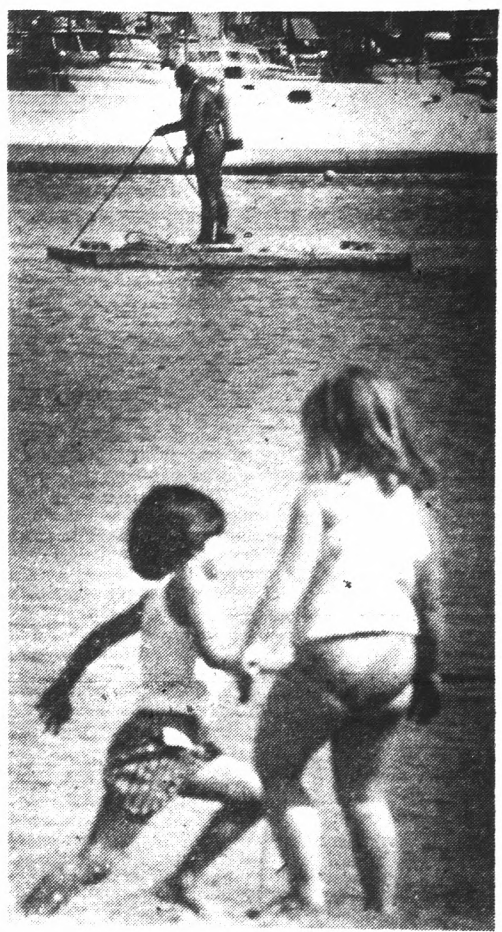

A student at Parkway Junior High School, Ibarra, according to witnesses, was swimming with friends from a floating platform at the marina to the shore when he became exhausted and sank in the water, police said.

Participating in the search was the Sheriff's Department, the South San Francisco Police Department and Officer John Grant, who also is a scuba diver, the Coast Guard and the harbor master.

A native of Mexico, Ibarra lived two years in South San Francisco, and was a seventh grade student at Parkway Junior High School, where he was active in sports. He also played soccer for the Mexico Soccer Team, affiliated with the All Souls Catholic Church.

Surviving in addition to his parents are four sisters, Maria, Sylvia, Marguerita, and Lupe; two brothers, Jose and Daniel Ibarra, of the family residence, and many other relatives.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday, with the cortege leaving the Nauman and Lincoln mortuary, South San Francisco, at 10:30 a.m. A Mass of Christian Burial will be offered at All Souls Catholic Church at 11 a.m. Re-

Multi-use Center Proposal Slashed

Daly City's City Council Monday slashed $90,000 from a Planning Commission proposal to allocate $290,000 in federal funds in 1978-79 to develop the city's controversial multi-purpose center.

The move is expected to delay the groundbreaking for the Mission Street center a year, according to Community Development Director Don Fleming.

Fred DeJarlais, the city's Housing and Community Development Act task force head, said groundbreaking for the project, originally planned for March 1979, probably will not occur before March 1980.

The staff's original recommendation had been for $320,000 in HCDA 1978-79 funds to be allocated for the multi-use center. The Planning Commission had cut the amount to $290,000.

The council, in lowering the funding to $200,000, decided to beef up the Planning Commission's earmarked funding for a house painting program, Hillside Park development and construction of a lot at John Daly Boulevard.

DeJarlais said the HCDA monies, about $391,000, allocated in the past three years, will be sufficient for site acquisition and design of the multi-purpose center.

However, he said, site preparation work, as well as aspects of tenant relocation, would hold up the groundbreaking date until funds are available to complete it.

The center, planned to house social services, library and recreation services, became the subject of controversy last fall when area residents objected to the Mission Street location adjacent to the War Memorial Building.

Some residents complained that the proposed

Mission Street site was unsuitable because it would take commercial property off the city's tax rolls.

However, the City Council voted to initiate eminent domain proceedings against several property owners who control the 1.35 acres the city has earmarked for the center.

The city is negotiating with the Mission Street property owners.

Councilman Anthony Giammona, who made the motion that $200,000 in fourth year HCDA funding be allocated for the multi-purpose center, said he was concerned about the fate of the house painting, Hillside Park and lot projects.

He suggested increasing the total lot allocation from a Planning Commission recommendation of $40,000 to $90,000, the park proposal from $50,000 to $80,000 and the house painting program from $46,000 to $50,000.

Giammona said he does not consider the multi-purpose center delay to be significant.

"As long as we are developing the center and are doing it in an orderly fashion, I think it will be all right," he said.

The council unanimously voted to accept Giammona's proposal, although Councilman Albert Teglia expressed concern about reducing the center funding.

In allocating $775,000 in HCDA funding for 1978-79 city projects, the council also earmarked $10,000 to the Anti-Crime League of Daly City, $250,000 to the residential rehabilitation program, $80,000 to Lincoln Park development, $15,000 to Bayshore Park construction, and $18,000 in current, unused HCDA monies to Guadalupe Health Center for heating repairs.

The council held an hour-long public hearing on the funding proposals.

Mrs. Susie Sanders questioned the amount of money the staff estimated it will take to purchase acreage for the John Daly lot.

DeJarlais estimated that the city could buy a vacant lot plus a second lot containing a single-family residence for $80,000 to $90,000.

He said there is little vacant land in the area.

Dr. Eddie Welton, representing a recently started, city-sponsored youth jobs program, asked for $10,000 to ensure that the program obtains funds for office supplies and transportation. The council did not allocate HCDA monies to the program, now aided with federal manpower money.

Harold Calder, a member of the Crocker Neighborhood Association, inquired when the city would begin expansion development of Lincoln Park.

City Manager David Rowe said the expansion is awaiting the decision of property owners on Brunswick Street to sell their residences to the city. He Discussion on allocating $177,000 in parking meter revenues to construct parking lots in the Mission Street redevelopment area brought a twinkle to Daly City Mayor William J. Schumacher's eye.

"While we're on that subject, maybe we should talk about how parking meter funds are collected," he said Monday night, referring to San Francisco's scandal over alleged embezzlement of some $3 million worth of parking meter funds.

City Manager David Rowe obliged with a brief report on how Daly City's parking meter revenues are collected.

He said designated employees deposit the coins directly into a locked container, taking the container directly to local banks.

Rowe said while no system totally safeguards the funds from "the possibility of theft," he told the council that he believes it's a good system.

He said direct deposit

Younger Aide Repeats Savage Conflict Ruling

By TERRY DAVENPORT

State Attorney General Evelle Younger has reiterated his opinion that Pacifica Councilman Mark Savage cannot serve as director of Pacifica's Youth Service Bureau during his term on the City Council.

City Attorney Robert Lanzone received a letter Monday from N. Eugene Hill, chief assistant attorney general, that reads, "We have considered the matters presented... and find nothing therein to change our conclusion."

Lanzone had requested the attorney general reconsider the opinion, arguing that Younger did not seem to have all the facts of the situation.

After the first opinion was received in December, Lanzone said it was based on the erroneous assumption that the City Council closely monitors the activities of the Youth Service Bureau.

Lanzone noted that Savage's habit of abstaining during council meetings on issues pertaining to the Youth Service Bureau should be enough.

In his original opinion, Younger said Savage must resign from one of his two positions in order "to cure the incompatibility."

Younger also ruled that Councilman Stanley Farber has no conflict of interest in serving as an unpaid member of the Youth Service Bureau's board of directors while he sits on the council.

Farber requested the opinion over two years ago at the time of Savage's election to the council.

The Youth Service Bureau board voted 5-2 in

"Insofar as it is urged that the city does not continuously scrutinize the activities of the bureau or the director, but does so only once a year at budget time, we believe that such does not consider the fact that the activities of the board and the director are continuously subject to the city's scrutiny if it so desires."

"If we may submit an

January to retain Savage as director, saying it was compatible for him to hold both jobs. The board also voted to seek clarification from Younger on his opinion.

In the reiteration of the opinion, which arrived Monday by Assemblyman Louis J. Papan's office, Hill explains, "The fact that the director of the Youth Service Bureau is not directly answerable to the city, but to his own board of directors was specifically considered by this office when the opinion was originally prepared."

analogy, all deputies in this office are continuously under the supervision of the chief assistant attorney general of their respective divisions despite the fact that their section heads and leads deputies carry on their day to day supervision, and the division chief may only have occasion to 'scrutinize' their activities or performance annually or semi-annually when he reviews their performance reports."

Lanzone commented that the attorney general based his opinion on the fact that

Complaints on Noise, Litter Continue

D.C. to Pull From Convention Bureau

Daly City will notify the San Mateo County Convention and Visitors Bureau that it will terminate city support June 30.

The city may reconsider the matter after June 6, the date the state's voters decide on the Jarvis-Gann property tax initiative. City Manager David Rowe has said the measure will considerably reduce the city's revenues.

He recommended giving the bureau 90 days notice that the city will end its $4,500 yearly support as a cost-saving measure that may be needed.

Although the Jarvis-Gann initiative vote prompted the City Council's action, there was talk at last June's budget hearings concerning whether the city needs the bureau's services.

Some residents pointed out that Daly City has few motels and most of the lodgings are said to be not of the size or type that attracts convention business.

In another matter, the council decided not to let the impending Jarvis-Gann initiative prevent the city from hiring a personnel analyst at a $13,032 to $14,952 yearly salary.

The council voted to fill the new position with a Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) worker.

Councilman Anthony

Giammona noted, "No matter what happens, we will need help in the personnel area."

The council also heard continuing complaints from Mission Street area residents about noise and litter problems at the Jack-in-the-Box restaurant there.

Ernie Pezzola, co-chairman of the Original Daly City Protective Association, told the council that if no action was forthcoming, "We'll take the law into our own hands."

Councilmen, who said the restaurant's use permit will come into scrutiny at the next council meeting, urged the residents to be patient until then.

Resident George Kirc-chubel, who initiated a lengthy discussion on the funding of redevelopment activities, inquired as to when the city will be paid back its large loans to the Redevelopment Agency.

"That would require a crystal ball," Rowe said, noting that the tax increment funding beginning to come in will reduce in small amounts the loans the city is making.

He said the city's now redevelopment consultant will report on the financing of future activities in July.

The council adopted several resolutions and ordinances without much comment.

The council:

• Rejected a request to locate a TSCO Bell restaurant at Shipley Avenue and King Drive.

The use permit request, denied by the Planning Commission, had been the target of intense opposition by some Serramonte residents.

• Approved an ordinance prohibiting the keeping and storage of dead animals in residential areas.

• Unanimously approved an ordinance prohibiting littering and setting penalties for the infraction.

• Approved an ordinance which spells out conduct in public parks and sets night hours of closure.

• Appointed Mary Jane Medina to fill a vacancy on the city's Recreation Commission created by the resignation of Jane Powell.

Mrs. Medina was selected unanimously from a field of 19 applicants.

• Amended a resolution to the Local Agency Formation Commission regarding an annexation request by the Mobil Oil station at Junipero Serra Boulevard.

The annexation request, as amended, referred to the provisions of the District Reorganization Act of 1965, rather than the Municipal Organization Act of 1977.

Savage

Savage had a contractual relationship with the city. He said Younger has not satisfactorily answered the question of whether Savage's practice of abstaining on Youth Service Bureau matters reduces the level of incompatibility.

Lanzone said he would like to refer Younger's opinion to the county district attorney, who also serves as the legal representative to the Pacifica Youth Service Bureau.

Noting that he cannot ignore an attorney general's opinion, Councilman Stanley Farber said, "My opinion of attorneys' opinions is if you have five attorneys, you get five opinions."

He urged the council to decide its action independently.

ating the total to development of two parking lots in the redevelopment area, in lieu of allocating any of the city's $775,000 in HCDA funding to the parking lot project.

The council said it would consider the parking meter revenues matter at its next meeting.

Councilman Fred Howard said, "I've always felt there is an incompatibility."

I believe Mark has to make a decision as to which direction he goes in."

Mayor Nick Gust asked Lanzone to help the council determine the alternatives. "We can't just sit and resolve this," he said.

Lanzone pointed out that he had just received the opinion that day.

"If you'd like a set of alternatives, I'd like until the next meeting to prepare them," he said. The council agreed.

Savage has served on the Youth Service Bureau 5½ years. When asked previously which of the two jobs he would choose, he said he would prefer to remain on the council.

Pacifica Turns Off Cable TV Rate Hike, Turns On State Beach Access Campaign

The Pacifica City Council did away with an authorized increase in cable television rates by voting Monday night to return rates to the previous level.

City Attorney Robert Lanzone explained that the council could take that action since the cable television company, TeleCommunications, Inc., has not lived up to its contract.

TCI mailed notices of a rate increase last week that raised the fee for a single-family residence from $6.25 to $7.40 per month.

Mayor Nick Gust said the council had not authorized or been told of the rate increase.

Before TCI can raise rates, Lanzone said the company must: revise the franchise agreement; provide locally originated programs; equip the local studio with better equipment; test the system on a routine basis; and provide for a complaint system with same-day service to users.

In addition, Lanzone noted, TCI has failed to pay Pacifica 4 percent of its gross revenues. The Federal Communications Commission authorized that payment as of Nov. 15, 1977.

Once TCI meets these conditions, the council will reconsider implementing the rate increase. Cable subscribers were advised to ignore the bills they received last week from TCI.

The council authorized Lanzone to take legal steps to stop the rate increase. A subcommittee of the council said it will continue to be available to meet with TCI to work out a new contract.

The first environmental issue that the council has considered since two "pro-growthers" took the seats of two "non-growthers" was weed abatement.

Environmental Mark Savage cast the only vote against a motion calling for chemical weed abatement instead of the mechanical method that the city has used previously.

Not certain of the Coastal Commission's requirements for weed abatement in the Coastal Zone, the council directed its staff to follow the commission's guidelines for weed eradication in that area.

Savage objected that chemical weed abatement is "the cheapest and in my opinion the most dangerous way." He urged the council to authorize mechanical abatement, arguing that it would employ youths and unemployed citizens.

"I don't see why we should endanger the health of Pacificans," Savagage said.

Councilman Stanley Farber countered, "The city is the only one that can't use chemicals under the present law. There's no way you can stop individuals from using chemical means."

After Savage was outvoted 4-1, he cautioned, "One of the most common herbicides says on the label, 'Don't use in runoff areas.' I guess that's about anywhere in Pacifica."

Councilwoman Eleanor McGuire was outvoted 4-1 on another issue. She had voted against authorizing $19,000 for improvements to the sewage treatment plant.

Mrs. McGuire questioned plant operator William McDonald closely about the benefits of the proposed supplements. McDonald, defending a $16,146 scum holding tank and apparatus, said it was necessary to prevent grease from impeding the digester in the plant.

However, McDonald said it would cost the city $50 per month with or without the holding tank to have the scum hauled away. Mrs. McGuire pointed out that the $16,146 tank wouldn't save the city any money.

At Gust's urging, the council pinpointed the portion of San Pedro Beach that it would like the state to buy. The state Department of Parks and Recreation is planning to spend $1 million to buy as much of the beach as possible, thus ensuring public access.

The state's first priority had been designated as the area from San Pedro Creek to the headlands. The council agreed that the first priority should be from the rest area to the headlands.

The new designation eliminates an area that includes former county supervisor Jean Fassler's house, currently listed for sale at $300,000.

Meeting last week, the council decided not to warn city employees that they may be fired if Proposition 13 (the Jarvis-Gann Initiative) passes.

Monday, the council voted to freeze hiring on all city jobs, except those of safety officers. The council asked its staff to notify them when non-safety jobs become vacant.

The council also asked its staff to study the rationale behind sewer charges, which vary from as little as 64 cents per 100 cubic feet for laundromats, to $1.73 per 100 cubic feet for restaurants. The charge is supposedly based on the amount of debris in the wastewater.

Crash Course in Drugs Enforcement

Fifty-two law enforcement officers from 16 county agencies today began an in-depth, crash course in narcotics enforcement at the San Mateo Police Department.

The course is designed to put in the field knowledgeable, capable officers, ready to meet all phases of what law officers describe as the growing problem of heroin addiction in San Mateo County.

Recently, a multijurisdictional series of raids uncovered wide sales of heroin and other drugs in mid-county high schools and lower schools.

The class is intended to help lead a counteraction by police agencies to reduce and eliminate such sales and to apprehend those who make them.

"We believe," San Mateo Police Lt. Richard Bona said today, "that the sale of drugs and addiction is directly related to the burglary problem in San Mateo."

Chief J.L. Coppock, who joined in initiating the program with the state Department of Justice and San Mateo County agencies, indicated today he feels that the new program may show results almost immediately in reducing many kinds of crime in San Mateo County.

The chief said most heroin addicts have a habit costing $50 to $350 a day and that there is at least $25,000 worth of heroin injected into their veins daily in central San Mateo County.

"It is the people of San Mateo who are suffering by loss of property, and sometimes life, for an individual's need to fulfill a desire," Coppock said.

Coppock said the question of where addicts obtain the money to purchase the large amount of heroin sold "is obvious." Arrest records prove where the money is coming from, he indicated.

The class will be instructed by trained agents from all over the state of California, including both state personnel and Southern California city and county experts.

It will meet daily, after today's initial seminar, at the San Mateo police station for eight hours each day all this week.

Officers will be taught how to investigate and prepare cases within the legal framework of the state Health and Safety Code and how to make arrests so that they are firm in court.

Detection and analysis of heroin crimes and methods of dealing with both addicts and sellers will be taught in terms of modern technology.

Assistant Chief Norman McHugh of the Bureau of Investigation and Narcotic Enforcement of the state Department of Justice came to San Mateo to help start the program.

McHugh addressed the initial session.

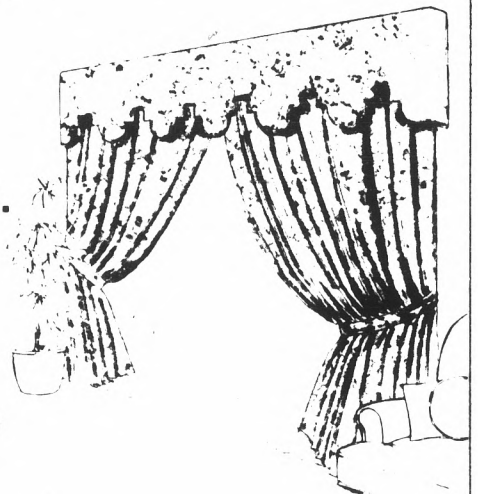

He told the group that this was "the best accredited program in the state of California" that he has seen.

fencing across open holes, caution signs around excavations, a minimum of at least two-way traffic on streets being worked on, efforts to control dirt and dust by obtaining permits to use city fire hydrants to water dirt piles and use of private property for construction vehicle and dirt storage only with the owners' permission.

These five conditions, resulting from complaints by city staff and affected residents and property owners, were imposed immediately, with the hearing to be re-convened immediately if there are any more complaints before April 3, according to Ed Lyons, administrative assistant to the city manager.

Attending the Tuesday meeting were City Attorney Albert Polonsky, representatives of the city water, street and electrical department staffs, and the district and its contractors. Detrick Construction Corp. of San Jose, Dalton Construction of South San Francisco and KCA Engineering Co.

THE COMPLAINTS have been coming into City Hall since construction of the $1.8 million trunk sewer project began, with city water mains broken seven times since March 1, Lyons said. The project is being funded with federal Economic Development Agency money.

Detrick allegedly has cut through water mains in the Westlake areas of Coronado Drive, Palmcrest, Lake Merced Boulevard and Southgate Avenue.

Representatives of Westlake Shopping Center, Westlake Bowl and the Country Club Apartments were at the meeting, all saying they had been affected by the excavations.

David Gehre, manager of the sanitation district, was unavailable for comment after the hearing.

LYONS SAID one of the problems faced by the contractors is that they're digging 28 feet down in some places. "There's a lot of dirt and they're having trouble controlling it," he said.

The excavation phase of the project should be completed within another 10 working days, Lyons went on, adding that cleanup and final fill for re-paving excavating streets should be finished in one to two months.

According to AL Bender, the city's acting water superintendent, the damage done to the water mains by the construction firm has cost the city more than $1,000 and more than 95 hours of city staff time for repairs.

"They have been a little careless," Bender said.

The acting water superintendent said the problem appears to be that Detrick's equipment is so large that it is "not sensitive" when water mains are endangered.

He said complaints from area residents, particularly in the area of Country Club apartments in Westlake, have resulted from the cutoffs of water for several hours.

Rowe replied that the property is being offered for sale to the city sooner than has been expected. He said the land may be cleared as early as two years from now.

Rotary SamTrans Plans to Improve May Kill Bus Service in Pacifica Proposal

South San Francisco's City Council Wednesday night refused to put a proposal for the development of low-income housing in the city on the ballot in June, opting instead for a place on the November ballot.

Proponents of the proposal, the Rotary House, indicated however, that they may consider dropping the matter entirely.

Rotary had asked the council to put the measure on the ballot in June. It would have asked voters to approve, in concept, a plan for up to 75 units of low-income housing for the developmentally handicapped and senior citizens. It would be located adjacent to Rotary Plaza in South San Francisco.

The proposal, which would not be funded with city tax dollars, calls for the Rotary Club to borrow $1.5 million from the state for construction of the low-rent apartments.

According to Rotarian Bill Meenan, the California Housing Finance Authority had assured the Rotary Club that if South San Francisco voters approved the project, that agency would lend the construction money.

The council, however, said it wouldn't consider placing such a proposal on the ballot without first having public hearings on it. That way, the council said, the public would be informed on the issue before casting their vote.

The council also said that Rotary should provide more specifics on the proposal, including actual building plans, before asking for voter approval.

"You're asking us to come up with theoretical answers to a bunch of theoretical questions," Rotarian James Scott told the council. "You're talking about problems that will come up several months from now before the Planning Commission."

Scott pointed out that even if voters approve the plan, any proposal would have to follow traditional building channels, including hearings before the Planning Commission and the council.

"I'm concerned about the public hearing," Councilman Terry Mirri said. "At a hearing before the public, the public would be better informed. It would create a dialogue. How can we bypass this necessary and essential part of a ballot measure?"

Councilwoman Roberta Teglia agreed. "It's still an ill-defined project," she said. "We need clear, defined uses and clear explanations of the effects of that use."

Scott, however, said that "it is premature and inappropriate at this time to Bold improvements in bus service to Pacifica are promised by the San Mateo County Transit District.

SamTrans officials told Pacifica's Transportation and Safety Commission and eight residents late last week that they will revamp service beginning May 1.

Among the improvements promised are:

- Better supervision of drivers.
- Increased service from Park Pacifica to the BART station in Daly City.
- Later service in both directions between Linda Mar and the BART station.

- Special bus runs to transport seniors to activities at Oddstad Center.

- A number of shelters at bus stops.
- Better parking opposite the Linda Mar Shopping Center.

- Door-to-door distribution of new schedules April 21-23.

James Gallagher, director of marketing, and Al Cianfichi, director of planning, made the recommendations in response to repeated complaints from Pacifica residents since SamTrans took over local bus service in mid-1976.

Residents had plenty more to tell the two SamTrans officials.

Homeowner's Aid Program Explained

Mr. and Mrs. Colin Emmerson of Pacifica were pleased to learn that they may be entitled to property tax relief due to a mudslide on their property.

The news was brought to them by Roland Giannini, a candidate for San Mateo County assessor. Giannini told the Emmersons about Ordinance 2302, which the county Board of Supervisors adopted April 15, 1975.

The ordinance provides for reassessment of damaged or destroyed property in San Mateo County. To have property reassessed, damage to the land must amount to more than $5,000.

Giannini said it appears that damage to the Emmerson property is so severe it is unlikely a buyer would pay the current value listed on the assessment roll.

He explained that homeowners throughout the county may benefit from the ordinance in the event natural elements damage their land.

Heavy rains caused mud to slide five feet down the slope behind the Emmerson's home at 2 Malavear Court earlier this month. Colin Emmerson said Friday his house no longer is in immediate danger.

Paper Drive Press Women Honor Post Reporter

The Conquistadors Drum and Bugle Corps will hold a newspaper collection drive in South San Francisco March 31 and April 1.

A trucktrailer will be stationed at Ryan Way and Victory Avenue to collect newspapers from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Nancy Stancill, reporter for The Amphlett newspapers, including The Post has received two state awards in the 26th annual California Press Women's Communication Contest.

Ms. Stancill was awarded a second place in feature writing and a second place in special articles on education.

The feature award was given for a story by Ms. Stancill on a pet cemetery in Colma. The special articles in education award cited several stories on programs in the Jefferson Union High School District.

Ms. Stancill covers the Daly City, Colma and Brisbane area of the North County for the newspaper.

The statewide awards were presented at a California Press Women meeting March 11 in San Diego.

require us to come up with specific answers."

Scott requested that the council take a vote on placing the issue on the June ballot "or we'll withdraw the proposal."

The council, however, refused to do so. Scott could not be reached for comment on whether Rotary actually will drop the plan.

"You've put a lot of work into those," Council Emmanuele Damonte said of the plans. "I hope you don't abandon it."

Lydia Azevedo asked for better bus service in the Vallemar area. She said SamTrans will have to be cautious in that neighborhood in the fall, when more students will be waiting for buses. Vallemar School recently was designated as a structured school, displacing students who prefer to remain in the regular program.

Ruth Amber, a resident of Fairmont, complained about waiting for a bus that never arrived. Upon calling SamTrans, she learned that the service had been discontinued with no notice to residents.

Kay Grotum remarked that midday service is poor. "If you want to attend a concert in San Francisco or a luncheon, you have to plan to arrive either very early or very late," she said.

Violet Lancer, another resident of Fairmont, pointed out that one driver had mumbled directions and irritated passengers by playing a radio too loud. She asked SamTrans to mark its buses more clearly.

Commissioner Hugh Miller demanded to know why all city-bound buses from Pacifica end at the BART station. He said he had seen SamTrans buses in San Francisco that go to San Bruno.

Cianfichi replied that San Bruno and other North County cities have requested service to the city and that the Pacifica to BART route is a "natural."

Miller said Cianfichi's reply did not satisfy him.

In reply to comments about drivers, Cianfichi said, "We have about 10 percent of our drivers that just do not perform according to our standards." He explained that SamTrans had inherited many drivers when it took over the routes.

Cianfichi added that SamTrans puts all its drivers through a special training program.

An Attempt to Heal the Whole Body

By JANET PARKER

A San Carlos attorney for the last 40 years has devoted a third of his professional time to religious groups that practice psychic healing.

Senior citizens travel all the way from San Bruno to Palo Alto once a week to delve into yoga, music therapy, biofeedback and relaxation techniques.

A popular Canada College psychology course features a psychic healer, a Chinese herbalist and a psychiatrist who advocates spiritual psychotherapy.

Quietly, hundreds of San Mateo County residents are turning to healers, rollers, yogis and masseuses for some aspect of their health care.

They are part of a nationwide obsession with holistic health — attempting to heal the whole body — as a supplement to traditional medicine.

"A lot of people are dissatisfied with health care as we know it today," according to Dr. Ruth Spangenberg, Canada College psychology instructor.

"People want to be part of their health care. There's so much fear and anxiety connected with medicine," she related.

For example, she said she resents that during her last three physicals, her doctor didn't explain what anything meant or why it was important. She's an intelligent person and she has a right to know, she said.

Western medicine, she said, has too long focused on alleviating the symptoms of illness — the headaches, stomach pains and muscle cramps. Eastern healers, she said, attempt to heal the spirit before attempting to heal the body.

Holistic Health

It's been shown, Dr. Spangenberg noted, that many illnesses, even cancer, are encouraged by emotional illness.

Furthermore, the Chinese in particular have focused on preventing illness. Chinese doctors don't even get paid if they can't make a sick person well again.

Burlingame physician Dr. Louis Shattuck Baer said he believes all "good doctors practice holistic health and there's a larger percentage of good doctors in San Mateo County than anywhere else in the country."

Baer, a professor emeritus with Stanford University, said the literal meaning of holistic health is that "the whole is more than the sum of its parts."

In other words, a patient's total problem is more than just each of his physical problems thrown together.

But advocates of the new holistic health trend see a treatment of the mind, the body and the spirit using a variety of unorthodox methods, Dr. Spangenberg said. There's no reason that the valuable knowledge of medicine as we have known it for many years cannot be part of it, she contended.

"The holistic approach is attempting to rejoin all forms of healing," Dr. Spangenberg said.

"The holistic method looks at the whole person and

Time to Get Rolfed, Touched, Healed, Massaged, Hypnotized

By JANET PARKER

Critics call it hocus pocus. But, supporters say that new trends in self-health care are energizing and rejuvenating many persons.

San Mateo Community College District Community Services' courses in acupressure, internal exercises, self-hypnosis and yoga are packed and there are waiting lists.

Suddenly, it's "in" to get rolfed, massaged, healed, touched, unstressed, hypnotized, functionally integrated, soothed with music therapy and poked with acupuncture needles.

And, it isn't necessarily cheap. A one or two-hour session of rolfing — often described as very painful — costs about $40. Acupressurists charge from $15 to $20 a session. A session of psychic healing runs from $10 to $20.

Here's what a few of those local holistic healers do: Envision a human body made up of children's building blocks with some slightly tilted, some askew and others simply off-balance.

Then, take a firm, authoritative hand and restack those blocks, building an erect tower free of defects. That's something like the task of a rolf — a practitioner of a startling kind of therapy that's been gaining notoriety in the holistic field for several years.

There are only 200 practicing rolfers in the world and three of them are located in the San Andreas Health Council building in Palo Alto. About one-third of their clients are from San Mateo County since there are no practicing rolfers here.

"Rolfing is a way of balancing the body," said rolf Joan Morton.

A chiropractor, he explained, works with individual parts of the body — one bone as it relates to the bone next to it. But, a rolf works with the entire body until the pelvis and the legs are providing adequate support for the trunk.

"Most clients report that it feels like a massage that's deep enough," according to rolf Mike Kilgore of Menlo Park.

Massage, he said, is usually a "relatively painless" surface type of treatment that facilitates relaxation and stimulates circulation.

But, rolfing actually seeks to restructure and reorganize the muscles for more effective usage.

The movie "Semi-Tough" satirized the pain that is often associated with rolfing. The rolfers don't deny that rolfing can be painful but the degree of pain depends upon the amount of resistance a rolfee offers and the type of rolfing the rolf practices.

Rolfing works something like this:

First, the rolf observes the client; then photographs front, back and side views. After each of 10 sessions, photographs again are taken. During each session, the rolfie lies flat on a table while the rolf pushes and slides his hands across the skin.

Rolfers claim they actually release the connective body tissue by applying pressure with their hands, fingers, knuckles and elbows.

Once the fascia is released, they explained, the body can be "realigned."

The pain aspect of rolfing is unfairly overemphasized, Parker said.

"Who would pay $45 an hour to come and get hurt and not get results?" Parker said.

The first time someone told Joan Morton she was going to be a "great healer," she looked at them in disbelief.

After all, she was a registered nurse and her interest in healing was in needles, bandages and pills. But, in recent years she discovered and practiced her psychic powers to the point she now calls herself a psychic healer.

"I believe medicine and healing can work together," the Menlo Park woman said. "That's what makes it holistic."

She admits that she sometimes is limited by her "belief systems" — her past as a traditional nurse.

For example, if she sees a cancer victim wasting away, the nurse inside of her might tend to think, "It's too late."

"Sometimes I'm better off if I don't know what the illness is," Ms. Morton said. She is an ordained minister of the Essential Science Church and, legally, she's allowed to practice healing if she doesn't touch the body.

Healing, she said, doesn't have to be physical. It also can be spiritual. Death, she said, is the "ultimate healing." It's freedom from the body.

Ms. Morton began having psychic experiences when her fiancé was killed 10 years ago. The frequency grew and was capped off by the premonition that her own seemingly healthy father would have heart failure one night. She called a sympathetic doctor who rushed him to a hospital where the father had a heart attack that night.

Psychic experiences, she said, "took over my life. As long as I tried to do other things, this kept getting in the way." Finally, she decided to get out of nursing and into healing.

She begins a session by asking for "what's right and

ABAG Bay Area Plan

Proposals Unproved

The widely discussed and apparently little-understood Environmental Management Plan (EMP) produced by a task force of the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) would reportedly cost Bay Area taxpayers an astounding $500 million to $600 million a year to implement.

One of the reasons the "management plan" has been imperfectly understood has been perfectly described by ABAG Associate Director Dean Macris. It is impossible, according to Macris, to grasp the plan's full effects because the plan itself is in a state of constant change. Even so, he said, this area is ahead of others in the nation. The Bay Area is the first metropolitan area in the country, according to Macris, to have a proposed environmental management plan this far along. Such plans are required by two laws passed by Congress in 1972 — the Water Pollution Act and the Clean Air Act.

One insight into the reason this plan has caused such strong objections from many parts of San Mateo County was offered in a letter from an ABAG task force member which was published March 17. H. C. Holcomb, business agent for Local 467 of the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, a member of the 46-person task force, wrote that "the ABAG staff as a whole are 'no growth'-oriented people. Portions of the Environmental Management Task Force were selected by the ABAG staff for the simple reason they too were basically 'no growth' individuals."

This explanation might help to explain the earlier assertion by William Hern, executive director of the Peninsula Manufacturers Association, that implementation of the plan would deal another body blow to industry in San Mateo County. Hern said the Bay Area has already gone further in regulating water and air quality than other parts of the country with which plants here must compete.

As one example of the pervasive nature of the controls envisaged in the EMP, Supervisor Fred Lyon, another ABAG task force member, said that air quality controls alone would require eliminating all oil-based paints, and imposing tighter industrial air pollution and automobile emission standards. The plan would also lead to higher bridge tolls and parking taxes in order to reduce the use of automobiles, as well as more land use restrictions aimed at curbing commuting by car. Even the use of small engines in chain saws and power lawnmowers would be subject to stringent new controls.

Although the proposed EMP is still in the discussion stage and is undergoing basic changes, it is already clear that hundreds of millions of taxpayer dollars would be required for its implementation. At the same time, the changes envisaged would have a seriously negative impact on many aspects of life in this county and the Bay Area generally.

As San Mateo City Councilman John Murray has pointed out, if this incredibly expensive plan were carried out, "we'd all be healthy as hell but have no jobs, no money and be told where we must live." Under the circumstances, as The Times suggested earlier, congressional hearings on the full scope and effects of the planning proposals are clearly needed. Since the Bay Area is being proposed as a planners' "guinea pig" in this respect, the hearings should be held in this area.

State Will 'Kill It'

"You name it — and California will kill it." — Martin Gellen.
Look at the record as recorded by Curt Gentry (The Last Days of the Great State of California, Putnam):

"IT CREATED the nation's finest system of higher education and methodically set about destroying it. California provided the founding site for the United Nations and gave the John Birch Society the strength of numbers to oppose it. Though it may be heresy even to think of it, it must also be said that California is often a ridiculous state."

In 1911, while other states were thinking about it, California adopted recall, initiative and referendum as elements of popular democracy — but turned them over to special interests as tools for locking in provisions that often reduce the people's control over their government.

The Progressives in 1911 spoke of the initiative as a means of thwarting powerful interest groups and the political parties. "The public is expected to intervene in California government," the Progressives said. "Citizens should participate in their own government. Voters should take an active role in law making through direct democracy." But look at the results as outlined by Crouch and Bollens in their Your California Governments in Action (Univ. of Calif., $3.25).

"IN A state the size of California the task of circulating a petition is so great that large-scale political organization is necessary for success. Several businesses have sprung up specializing in obtaining signatures for petitions. A dozen or so public relations firms specialize in putting on campaigns necessary to advertise the reasons why voters should vote 'yes' or 'no' on a proposition."

"All this," they continue, "is very expensive and can be afforded only by large, well-financed groups. The campaigns become so confusing that the voter has a difficult time determining if 'Right to Work' or 'Swat the Oil Hog' is for his best interest or against it."

Once again the forces of special interest groups are arrayed to pass an initiative that will serve their interests. The proponents of Jarvis-Gann scream about the cost of government and the apathy of the state legislature. Yet their initiative does not call for cutting the size of the state government. It will not affect the legislature directly. It will not reduce one dollar of federal taxes. Instead, it will hit local government, which accounts for the smallest percentage of the taxes paid in California.

"OH," SOMEONE says, "the people will not let them close libraries and lock up the parks. They'll not stand by and see fire and police departments cut to 60 or 70 percent of their size." But there is no provision in the Jarvis-Gann for funding these services.

Perhaps it is true that if Jarvis-Gann passes, some way will be found to fund street departments, garbage disposal units, schools, water departments and all the other service units of local government. However, it will be the state or the federal governments. If so, these governments will grow to sizes beyond the imagination of even Howard Jarvis.

The bureaucracy in Washington and that in Sacramento will grow bigger than ever and cost more and more each year. In their growth, they will take away from the people the control they have over local officials.

JARVIS-GANN — known officially on the ballot as Proposition 13 — is a poor bill. It does not reduce the taxes where they need to be reduced. It is the dream of a special interest that had money to gather petitions and to conduct a campaign, but it is not in the interest of the people, at large, of California.

California has created a system of local government that is one of the best in the nation. California must not kill it by support of a poorly-prepared initiative, however alluring the special interests make it sound.

says, "Is there some psychological problem causing this?" said Leonard Worthington, the San Carlos attorney.

The true holistic healer considers everything that witch doctors, healers and modern doctors have studied, he related.

Worthington said he had his first encounter with psychic healing more than 40 years ago when, as a young attorney, he went to the home of a dying woman to assist in drawing her will. A day later, she called him to say the will no longer was needed, he claimed. He said he believes the dying woman's will and spirit to live restored her health.

He proceeded to investigate everything he could find on the subject of healing and soon decided to devote a third of his professional time to any religious group that believes in spiritual healing. Since then, he has helped hundreds of unusual churches, religious orders, healing groups and individuals from Menlo Park to Tibet.

The basic problem, Worthington said, is Section 2141 of the Medical Practices Act that prohibits anyone but a licensed physician from diagnosing and prescribing.

The U.S. Constitution, however, protects religious practice. Consequently, he points out, there's a fine line between religion and medicine.

Worthington has written a declaration he said is used by scores of psychic healers for their legal protection. It requires the healer's client to state, under penalty of perjury, that he is not an employee or investigator of a governmental agency, medical association or law enforcement group and that no recording of the session is occurring.

It also states that the client is aware his healer is not licensed under any state laws to practice any form of medicine and that neither diagnosis or prescription is permitted.

But, holistic health doesn't have to imply psychic phenomenon and avant garde treatments. Gary Scheffel is a Foster City optometrist who believes in preventing the need for eyeglasses. What he practices is not very popular among his colleagues.

"I'd rather see people not have to wear glasses," Scheffel said.

The thrust of his work is in the area of orthokeratology — a procedure aimed at improving rather than simply correcting vision.

Scheffel is alarmed that more physicians and health care professionals don't take a holistic approach toward medicine — treating the eyes as part of the whole body.

For example, he treated one woman who had been taking artificial thyroid for 10 years and had never been told that the drug would have a detrimental effect on her eyesight.

There are people who frequently visit chiropractors and have no idea that there are nerves that go from the spine directly to the eyes, he related. When a person's back is strained, their vision often will get worse, he added.

Unfortunately, Scheffel said, most people practice "crisis health care." They actually take better care of their plants and their car than they do their own health, he said.

The frustrating factor for many persons who delve into holistic medicine is the lack of immediate result, Scheffel noted. Americans are accustomed to demanding a pill that will stop the pain now. Holistic health is not immediate and, therefore, some people think it can't be effective.

Actually, he said, a holistic practitioner is a teacher — telling the client how to help his own health and prevent illness.

A field of treatment that has captured the attention of the American Medical Association is biofeedback, a system of controlling bodily functions using intricate instruments.

According to psychiatrist W. Melvin Brown, most of what biofeedback does is empirical. It's justified by the fact that it works, although the reasons that it works are not quite certain.

Brown is one of two psychiatrists who practices at the San Mateo Biofeedback Center. The biofeedback practitioner connects the patient to various machines that give an instant feedback on bodily changes.

Biofeedback, Brown explained, can be used to help a patient control, with practice, migraine headaches, hypertension, asthma and chronic pain.

"One of the things we are doing is emphasizing that you are really responsible for your own health," Brown said.

A doctor may be able to patch up an ailing patient but the victim will never feel well until he learns to take care of his own health.

Dr. Brown is concerned that biofeedback is often judged as quackery because it has been associated with a lot of things he regards as so much hokum.

"I like it to be associated with anyone who is reputable," he said.

The concept of holistic medicine, Brown said, has caught on as society begins to question all its institutions from doctors to legislators.

It's becoming harder and harder to find good answers from the old sources of information and, as a result, there is constantly a search for something new, he said.

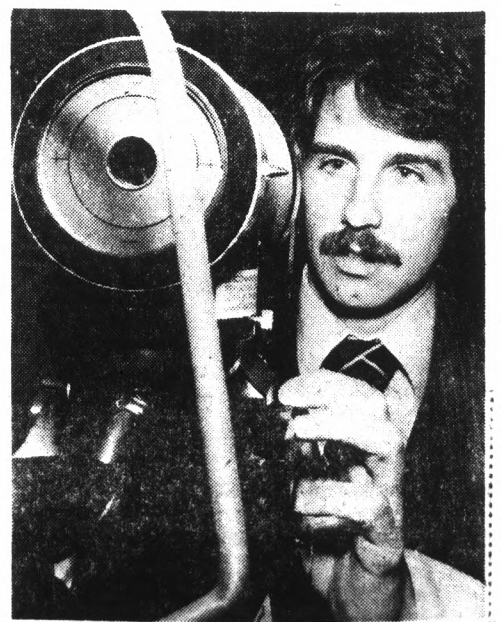

San Mateo County doesn't have a holistic health center. The climate here, Scheffel said, is too conservative for financial support of such an endeavor. Many San Mateo County residents use the San Andreas Health Council in Palo Alto.

Corine and Arnold True of La Honda join in a program for senior citizens once a week. Arnold True said he's spent most of his life using only one side of his brain and now he has decided it's time to use the other.

Corine got interested in the idea of preventive medicine when a bad back started to complicate her life.

ADULT YOGA

A student demonstrates body control and strength which can be developed through Hatha Yoga. The Daly City Recreation Department will sponsor a 10-week program Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m. April 4 through June 6 at the Westmoor Park Clubhouse. More information may be had by calling 992-5356.

'Community Concern' Offers Seniors Help

Plans are being developed to contact all Daly City merchants to increase participation in the Community Concern for Senior Citizens discount and special services program. Pairs of volunteers are organizing to reach all merchants with first-hand information on the program and an opportunity to participate.

Community Concern for Senior Citizens, unanimously approved by a resolution of the Daly City City Council, is an effort to lighten the economic burden of inflation on senior citizens. The resolution encourages Daly City merchants to participate in and to promote the program. Under this program, terms or discount or special service are at the discretion of each business. The percentage or flat amount may be limited to slack days or quiet hours.

Merchants sign an agreement stating their stipulations, agreeing to provide the discount service to all persons 65 and over. Volunteer groups are forming to contact businesses to explain the program and to help work up the simple agreement form for merchants wishing to participate. A distinctive green-and-white decal is provided to identify businesses offering discounts.

Copies of the signed agreement forms are retained and listed for posting at senior centers. A discount directory is compiled that includes all businesses offering specials and discounts for older persons.

CCSC, sponsored by six branches of the American Association of University Women, was proclaimed the Senior Discount program for San Mateo County. With no AAW branch in Daly City, two volunteers initiated program introduction last year. phone Virgel Davis, 584-8076 or Mariam Ghossein, 992-2567, or the county coordinator, Rachel Ralston, 323-3931.

Pacifica Can Handle It

Pacifica city employees won't have to worry about losing their jobs immediately in the event Proposition 13, the Jarvis-Gann Initiative passes in June, the City Council decided Tuesday night.

It was the consensus of the council that the city could operate as usual on reserve funds for at least six months, until city officials determine what cuts would have to be made.

That was good news to the dozens of city workers who crowded into the council chamber for the Tuesday study session. But others in the audience said the council seemed to be skirting the issue.

George Edsell, an active proponent of the initiative, remarked, "You seem to misunderstand the purpose of Jarvis-Gann. . . . The taxpayers of this state are going to tell their elected officials how much they can run the state on and they will have to work out a budget and justify every expense, just like in a household."

When Mayor Nick Gust asked audience members to show whether they supported or opposed the initiative by standing, about 40 citizens stood to show support for Jarvis-Gann and about 30 stood to indicate they oppose it. The majority of the audience failed to vote either way.

The council stressed it does not favor immediately slashing 70 city jobs if the initiative passes. However, that was the alternative most favored by City Manager Donald Weidner and Finance Director Gul Ramchandani.

In a presentation, Ramchandani explained that he found it most desirable to keep as many safety officers as possible. With revenues of just $2.5 million to spend instead of the $4.1 million Pacifica normally would have, Ramchandani said, the city would have to eliminate the city manager, the finance, community development and parks, beaches and recreation departments.

In addition, he said, Pacifica would have to fire 11 police officers and firemen.

Under this plan, both Ramchandani and Weidner would lose their jobs.

Weidner agreed with Ramchandani. He said, "Speaking for myself, it seems that the historical reasons cities were formed was for protection from enemies without and for mutual aid."

He said it would be senseless to depend on the county for public safety because the county would be in as bad or worse shape as Pacifica.

Weidner startled the council by adding that he found some cuts in government refreshing. "We as citizens have been over-administrated, over-controlled and over-legislated by city, county, regional and federal government for far too long," he said.

Other options proposed by the city staff in the event that the Jarvis-Gann initiative passes were:

- Police and fire services would be consolidated into one Department of Public Safety with a loss of 23 safety officers. A minimum of other city services would remain.

- Keeping police and fire departments separate but reducing 23 positions within both. Only a few other city services would continue.

- The city could continue to operate as usual for a year if the council decided to use up the city's reserve fund.

- Under this alternative, Pacifica would eliminate its police and fire departments and would depend on the county for public safety.

- Ramchandani estimated the city could operate as usual if each homeowner or renter paid

Two Children Injured In SSF Accident

Two young children were struck by an eastbound car on West Orange Avenue at about 2 p.m. Wednesday. Both were sent to Kaiser Hospital in South San Francisco, where they were reported to be in stable condition Thursday.

Injured were Teresa Turner, 7, of South San Francisco, with a fractured leg, and Bron Sunia, 4, visiting from Sacramento, with internal injuries.

A witness said the two youngsters were crossing West Orange at Myrtle Avenue, going away from West Orange Park, and ran in front of the eastbound car. Police identified the driver as David Calavano, 19, of Brisbane, who was not cited.

An irate neighbor called The Post Wednesday, claiming the accident was the result of a lack of traffic control at West Orange and Myrtle.

Children's Services Director Resigns

The director of the Daly City Community for Children's Services has resigned, leaving the day-care center with three teachers and an acting administrator.

Adrienne Shapiro, director of the state-funded center in Daly City for the past year, has resigned to accept a position with the San Francisco Unified School District.

Miss Shapiro, whose $1,000 a month director's position was eliminated by the DCCCS Board of Directors a few weeks ago, said she had been prepared to accept a $750 a month head teacher's position with the center.

She said, however, that she was forced to consider a better offer.

Ed Warren, a San Francisco consultant acting as temporary administrator of the center, said he will propose naming teacher Robin Burt as acting head teacher.

He said the center also will advertise for applications for head teacher. He said the day-care operation also is awaiting two CETA positions, funded by federally-based funds, to be filled.

State Beach by June Projected

Pacifica may have a state-owned beach by June, according to Kenneth Mitchell, senior landscape architect of the state Department of Parks and Recreation.

Mitchell said recently that the state hopes to purchase all or part of San Pedro Beach in Pacifica within the next three months.

State ownership of the beach would assure public access.

Mitchell explained that appraisals are nearly complete on the property under consideration. As soon as he receives those appraisals, he will be able to determine how much of the beach the state can afford to purchase.

The state intends to spend $1 million on as much of San Pedro Beach as the money will buy.

With the help of county and city officials, Mitchell said, one of his planners designated the area west of Highway 1 from the headlands south to San Pedro Creek as its first priority.

The state's second priority is the headlands area. Its third priority is the area from San Pedro Creek south to Tobin Station.

The appraised value of the land is confidential until the state's Public Works Board decides which portions of the beach it wants to buy. That decision is expected in June at the earliest.

Rental Housing Proposal

Low-income rental housing, a scarce commodity in Daly City, may be constructed in the city's Serramonte area if the Planning Commission approves a proposal to be presented at its April meeting.

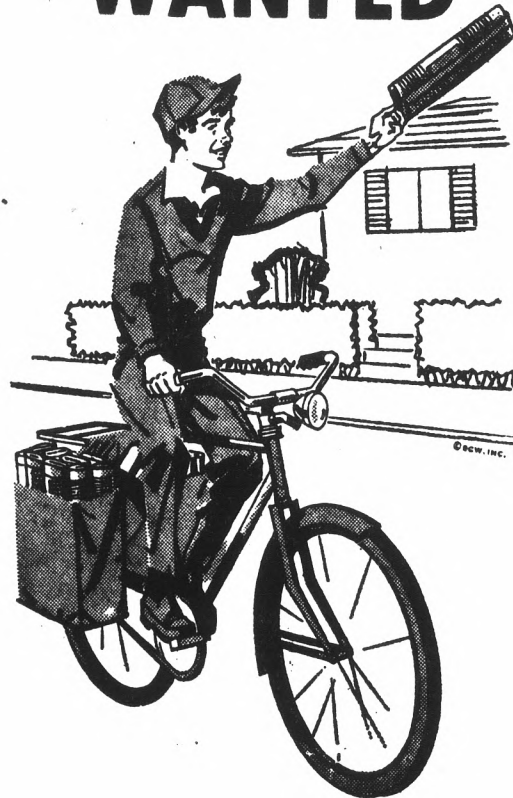

According to Acting City Planner Thomas Miller, a Los Angeles developer has proposed construction of 42 units of rental housing at the corner of Hyde Court and King Drive.

"The site has been identified by the 1977 General Plan as appropriate for that use," Miller said.

Miller said the only other subsidized housing projects in Daly City are Midway Village in the Bayshore area and two apartment developments for the elderly, Villa Fontana and Amberwood.

The acting city planner said he favors the concept of low income housing and added that General Plan consideration has included subsidized housing as a city goal.

Handicapped: Growing With Regular Students

By BILL HURSCHMANN

In years past, handicapped students generally have found themselves isolated from regular school programs. They attended special classes and associated only with fellow handicapped students.

This segregated concept is changing.

At Parkside Intermediate School in San Bruno, Anita Speciale teaches the orthopedically handicapped. This year, using funds from the San Mateo County Office of Education, 13 students from San Carlos to Daly City participate in the San Bruno program.

Now in its third year, the class "gives the students a chance to be in a regular school program and to grow with regular students," says Ms. Speciale.

"The students really learn what normal kids talk about, like who smiled at whom and who is taking whom to the dance. They receive the full spectrum of normal pre-adolescent behavior."

Students in the class are 11 through 14 years old. Some are kept in the special class for the orthopedically handicapped most of the day, maybe spending only 45 minutes, or one period, in a regular classroom. Others spend half the day in regular programs.

"Everyone is in at least one regular class," she says, "but the extent of their participation in a regular class often depends on their age. Eighth graders have a tendency to be out more than sixth graders."

Seventy-five percent of Ms. Speciale's students are functioning at their grade level. All the students suffer mobility problems, and the distinctions break down into three primary categories: They walk or don't walk (confined to a wheelchair), they write or don't write, and they make themselves understood by speaking or they don't.

Before the program at Parkside, these handicapped students attended El Portal del Norte School in San Bruno. After Parkside, they'll go either to Crestmoor High in San Bruno or Aragon High in San Mateo.

During the past three years, Ms. Speciale says she has observed quite a change in the handicapped students.

"At first they were looking to me as a form of encouragement, but now they don't need me anymore. No, it doesn't make me feel lonely, although I keep telling them that they can do better," she observes.

The handicapped students, by participating in regular classrooms, have learned to handle cruel remarks of other students.

"Dealing with nasty kids has been minimized," Ms. Speciale adds. "And our kids learn to deal with that potential situation earlier, and maybe throw something back, verbally, at the regular kids, or make a joke (out of the criticism). Now the regular students are terrific. They're always willing to help."

Other teachers at Parkside laud the program, as eighth-grade teacher David Donnelly points out.

"All the teachers I have talked to have been pleased with the program," says Donnelly, who has 14-year-old Steve Yum in his social studies class. "It's an excellent learning experience, and that's what the public schools are all about — schools for everybody."

The handicapped students are pleased, too, although it can be difficult at times, they admit.

"I have a lot of favorite classes," says Dave Abbott, a seventh-grader. "I took cooking last quarter, but didn't get a very good grade. I think it is because there were mostly girls in the class and it was tough."

"At first, I had a terrible time getting along with teachers," says 14-year-old Ozzie Carrizales, "but now most of the school knows me and I can talk to teachers with no trouble."

"It's better for me now because I'm more independent."

And, as 12-year-old Andy Donohoe added, "It's easier. I have a lot more friends now."

New Dimond

Director

Tom Tiberghiem, a resident of the Bayshore area of Daly City for 1½ years, has been appointed the third member of the Dimond Public Utility District Board of Directors.

Tiberghiem, 405 Acacia St., was chosen by Dimond Directors McMahon, Counts and Chester O. Spratlen at a recent board meeting. Spratlen said Tiberghiem was the only Bayshore resident who applied for the post.

Tiberghiem will fill the two years remaining in the unexpired term of David Allen, who resigned from the board two months ago.

Spratlen said the Dimond board has not taken any action to lower district water rates, which were raised from 45 cents per 100 cubic feet to 67 cents during water rationing last year. The Dimond district purchases its water from San Francisco.

Dim Bayshore Streets

May Be Brightened Up

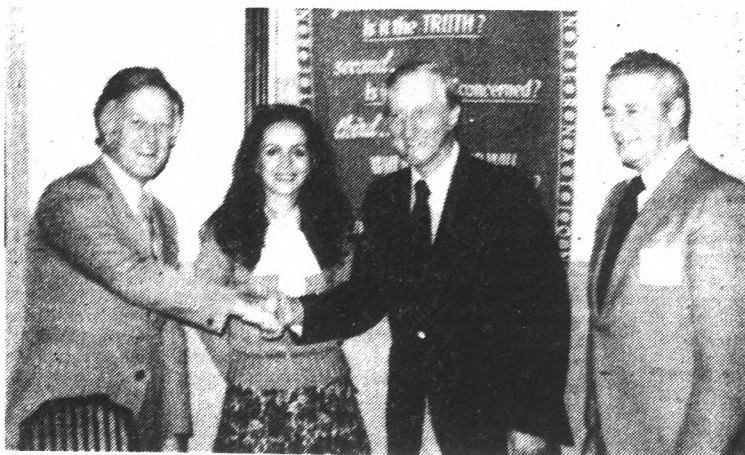

Street lighting in Daly City's Bayshore area may be in for $43,233 worth of improvements, if the City Council decides to accept a staff recommendation presented this week.

"Bayshore lighting is substantially below that in other areas," Assistant City Manager Raymond Letsinger told the council Monday.

He said if Bayshore lighting is brought up to city standards, the city should add 39 street lights to Geneva Avenue, 13 more to McDonald and 53 additional lights to other Bayshore area streets.

This is the day to enjoy the "Sport of Kings" for members of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild. The tour bus, headed for Golden Gate Fields and filled with guild members, will be leaving the Westlake area at 11 a.m.

Mrs. Howard Poblitz and Mrs. Aldo Fambini and Mrs. Frank Lawson have been in charge of the arrangements for this fun event, which doubles as a money raiser for the hospital.

THE HOSPITAL will be the eventual beneficiary of another event set for the middle of next month!

Mrs. Frank Gaffigan is heating the bushes for donors to the annual Lasagna and Bingo Luncheon which will be held on April 19.

Needed are small prizes for the day and cans or packages of food for the food basket which will be awarded during the afternoon. Mrs. Gerry Calderwood is the chairman of the gift committee. To make a donation, buy a ticket for $4 per person, or obtain more information, speak with any member of the guild's luncheon committee.

HOLIDAY TIME seem always extra busy for the members of the Daly City Senior Citizens who meet most weeks at the Lincoln Park Memorial Club House. Just to be different yesterday they boarded a bus and toured to Benicia for a glimpse of the lovely wild flowers abloom on the countryside and to poke about among the remnants of California's early days.

Friday the members will reverse directions and gather with other San Mateo County senior citizens for the monthly meeting of the San Mateo County Senior forum and one week later they will take a day-long tour of Monterey. Junkets to Eureka, Mammoth and Alaska are on the agenda for the coming months.

Mrs. Louise Buttle, the publicity chairman for the group reports that the club celebrated Easter with a parade of Easter bonnets, some elaborate and elegant and others petite and funny; but all colorful and fun at the annual Easter party which was held on Wednesday.

Carl Lind and Emmanuel Partida provided music for the afternoon and club members Kathy Dehne and Erna Kohlhauf entertained with some German songs.

Food from a local restaurant completed the party.

MRS. KATHY Bianchi is preparing her special surprise for "A Touch of Paradise," the fashion show and luncheon being sponsored this Saturday by the members of the Holy Angels Women's Guild.

Mrs. Bianchi is in charge of the special entertainment which will be incorporated with the fashions, awarding of prizes and the extensive menu being prepared by the chefs at the Ramada Inn in Millbrae.

Mrs. Linda Sarao is the general chairman of the show.

A LOT OF old timers felt pangs of nostalgia this past week as word of the passing of former San Mateo County Municipal Judge John J. Fahey reached town.

For years the name of Fahey was a household word in this area. "The Old Fahey House," located in what is now Pacifica, was the original family home, built by the judge's grandparents, and during the first quarter of this century the big white ranch home was a landmark for travelers headed southward along the coast.

The judge's father settled in Daly City and was active politically for years, culminating his career of public service with a term as mayor of the city. In 1941, Fahey was appointed a judge of the municipal court, a post he held until 1950.

Security Pacific Bank gave me a checking account free of a monthly service charge when I opened a Grand Account.

And, I get paid the Bank's legal maximum savings interest — up to 7½% annually in a Preferred Passbook Savings Account — after I select the maturity I want.

It's so easy and convenient to have my checking and savings accounts at Security Pacific Bank, I hardly even think about it. I guess that's why I like Security Pacific. I just don't have to think about banking anymore."

A Preferred Passbook Savings Account is a time deposit and is subject to the terms and conditions of the account agreement. The minimum deposit is $100.00. The minimum withdrawal is $50.00. The maximum withdrawal is $500.00. The maximum number of withdrawals per month is three. The maximum number of withdrawals per year is 36. The maximum number of withdrawals per year is 36. good" for her client. She said she sees the "whole pattern of their life" from their childhood.

Too often, spiritual healing is confused with religion, she said. Spirituality is in all of us, she added, and it has nothing to do with religion.

Actually, she said, an agnostic is the best healing client of all "because at least his mind is open."

Jenny Bickford, a certified masseuse when she began studying Jin Shin acupressure.

The more complicated form of massage uses pressure at the same places an acupuncturist would use needles, she said.

But, Americans don't do that sort of thing, so, most of her patients are those suffering from tension and pain.

Ms. Bickford, a Pescadero resident who practices in Menlo Park, was a certified masseuse when she began studying Jin Shin acupressure.

The more complicated form of massage uses pressure at the same places an acupuncturist would use needles, she said.

Her therapy is based upon an Oriental concept of 12 pulses — six on each side of the body. Most Western doctors would argue that those pulse points even exist, she said.

The acupressurist has very specific treatment patterns for very specific problems, she related.

The beauty of acupressure, she added, is that it can be used as a mode of self-health care.

Those who are treated are fully clothed, she said. Usually, a series of five treatments is recommended and necessary before any difference is made in acute problems.

"For many people, just the fact that someone is totally focused on them and touching them for an hour is very therapeutic," Ms. Bickford said.

B'nai B'rith Sets D C Council Meet

A workshop for B'nai B'rith Women chapter officers of all 19 chapters comprising the Central California Council will be April 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Westlake Community Center Meeting Room, 145 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

Incoming presidents, all vice presidents, treasurers, financial secretaries, corresponding secretaries, recording secretaries and counselors, are expected.

B'nai B'rith Women is an international Jewish women's service organization representing Jewish women in all walks of life.

Mrs. Libby Cross is leadership development chairman of the Central California Council. Ms.

Esther Kaplan will assist her in the role of details chairman.

Ms. Leone Silberman, chairman, Regional Board Central Pacific Region, will address attendees at the opening general session. Also slated are members of the Regional Steering Committee: Florence Mendel, Carol King, Estelle McClure, Muriel Chernoff, Marcia Glassel and Roberta Stainer, executive director Central Pacific Region.

Carole Raphael, retiring president of the Central California Council, and Rose Ann Polzner, president-elect of the Council, also will be present to welcome officers in attendance.

Holistic

it was likely to get worse," she said. She shopped around, she said, for something optimistic to do.

Now, she freely participates in yoga and other self-help methods.

William Phoenix, a Redwood City attorney, is a director of San Andreas. He said he first tried biofeedback to alleviate a longtime physical discomfort — cold feet and hands.

Biofeedback, he said, demonstrated that by some strange process, he could control involuntary muscles although it takes a long time to do it.

"I realized that all my life I have been carrying around all sorts of tension — especially in my back and shoulders," he said. "I started consciously relaxing."

Now, every morning he asks himself if he has any tension in his body and then he concentrates on eliminating it.

"There are so many things in the holistic health field that people can do for themselves," Phoenix said.

"It's not getting down on your hands and knees and praying to some doctor to do something."

"Organized medicine is not anti-holistic," according to Dr. Constantine Glafkides, a San Bruno physician and president of the San Mateo County Medical Society.

"We've embraced it. We've asked the holistic practitioners to give us their evidence and data," he said.

Licensed medicine at the state level is evaluating the goals and results of people like psychic healers, he said.

He agrees with Dr. Baer that most doctors do indeed practice "holistic medicine" — the concept that the whole body is greater than the sum of its parts.

However, he explained that the medical profession is concerned that people who are not trained in medicine are attempting to treat disease. There are nine or 10 things that could be causing a man's chest pain and it takes a licensed doctor to know all of those, he related.

A committee of the California Medical Association, the doctor of internal medicine pointed out, has recommended that only persons with "the necessary basic science as well as medical education, training and supervision" be licensed to practice the so-called holistic endeavors.

In other words, only licensed doctors could practice such things as rolfing and psychic healing.

Reputable doctors are indeed referring patients for biofeedback and acupuncture, he said. Both treatments are licensed by the state and are subject to regulation and investigation.

The society's executive secretary, Gene Taylor, said communication problems between doctor and patient do occur but it's the responsibility of both parties to resolve those problems.

Patients should tell physicians their expectations and if the doctor fails to meet those, the patient should look elsewhere, he said.

It's the medical specialist, not the general practitioner, who may appear aloof and cold, Glafkides said. But, he explained, it's the job of the patient's regular physician — not the specialist who's examining just the heart or just the ears — to deal with the whole patient.

Most physicians, Glafkides said, do believe in preventive medicine. But, he said, it's costly and time consuming to provide everyone with a complete physical every year. And, the doctor noted, preventive medicine is not a guarantee against heart attack or some other sudden ailment.

"I don't know of any magic that preventive medicine can provide," Glafkides said.

Dr. Spangenberg said she and other holistic advocates aren't trying to overturn traditional medicine. The licensed physicians are excellent at what they do and they are here to stay, she said.

But, doctors, she said, have been seeing only sick people for so long that they don't know what keeps people well.

The human psyche is very sensitive to tender loving care and that, she said, is more likely to come from the unorthodox forms of healing.

Worthington said he advises his healing clients to work with — not against — the medical profession. His declaration for the clients of psychic healers actually suggests that physical or mental complaints be referred to a licensed medical practitioner.

He said he believes there is something to holistic health that is worth the time and consideration of the medical profession.

It is his hope that holistic treatments will become a required part of medical school curriculum, he said.

"I know there is a power that will heal anything," he said. "If only we can find the right key to unlock that power."

Dr. Spangenberg predicts that holistic health will be the only kind of health care in 10 years.

"We're beyond the point of proving this works," Dr. Spangenberg said.

"The point now is how to incorporate it into traditional medicine."

SamTrans Goes for '78 Operating Funds

An application to the Metropolitan Transportation Commission to collect its operating funds for the 1978-79 fiscal year has been approved by the San Mateo County Transit District Board of Directors, meeting in Pacifica.

The annual operating budget for the third straight year has avoided increased bus fares and any local property tax levies.

The $14.6 million budget is up $2 million over the current fiscal year because of the addition of drivers to bring the total to 210, mandated employee benefits and the rising cost of everything the district buys, district directors noted. Estimated passenger revenue is $2.9 million, with ridership expected to increase by 10 percent over the year.

Of the rest, $6,552,000 is to be from state Transportation Development Act funds, $2,810,000 from federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration funds, and $2,302,000 from regional reserves.

In other business the board:

- Heard from Citizens Advisory Committee Chairman Robert Feldscher that his group wants ideas for a SamTrans display at this year's county fair, and is still open for applications for committee vacancies.

Applications for these positions may be obtained by contacting the SamTrans office, 400 S. El Camino Real, San Mateo.

- Learned that the federal Interstate Commerce

Commission has set hearings on the Southern Pacific request for Peninsula commute service abandonment to start April 25.

Peninsula hearings will be in San Mateo, May 1, Redwood City, May 2, Palo Alto, May 3, Mountain View, May 4, and San Jose, May 5.

- Heard from the staff that 20,000 bus schedules have been printed in Spanish and are available for distribution.

The airman, who is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Hogan is a 1977 graduate of Westmoor High School.

PCTA Plays Booked

The legend of Androcles, the slave who escaped death when thrown into the arena with a lion, will be enacted for young audiences next month when the Peninsula Children's Theater Association stages its final production of the season.

"Androcles and the Lion" will be presented on April 1 by the California Young People's Theater at Skyline College in San Bruno where shows are scheduled at 10 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. On April 15 at the same times shows will be given at Canada College.

Tickets for both performances will be available at the door although they may be purchased in advance by writing Peninsula Children's Theater Association, P.O. Box 572, Burlingame 94010.

The skit, a musical comedy version of the ancient Roman tale, has been dramatized by Aurand Harris as an attempt to recapture the style of the Italian commedia dell'arte. This style was used by Renaissance strolling players and featured a fixed story line and stock characters. All dialogue and action were improvised.

The fast-paced play tells the story of Androcles, a slave kept in servitude by a cruel master. While escaping from him, Androcles is confronted by a lion with a thorn in its paw. The slave removes the thorn thereby becoming friends with the animal. They meet again when Androcles is captured and placed in an arena to be eaten by a lion as punishment for running away. The lion he's trapped with none other than the one he had helped, dances with him instead of harming him.

Samuel Kuglen plays Androcles and Paul

LeBaron acts as the lion. The villains of the play — Pantalone and the Captain — are portrayed by Walt Leatherman and Ric Alpers. Robin Merriam and Patrick Pongracz are featured as the young lovers.

The production is being directed by Gayle Cornellson, the executive director of California Young People's Theater. Barbara Day is serving as musical director.

The Peninsula Children's Theater Association is a nonprofit organization dedicated to bringing "good live theatre for lively little people."

28 Merchants in Discount Program

Twenty-eight merchants in South San Francisco have signed up to participate in a discount program for senior citizens.

The program, called Community Concern for Senior Citizens, was approved several weeks ago by the South San Francisco City Council.

Merchants participating in it offer reduced prices to patrons 65 years old and older.

According to Lyle Norton, city director of parks and recreation, "The heart of the program is flexibility. Merchants stipulate the amount of the discount and the hours and days the discount is in effect. The program is designed to be mutually beneficial to the older shopper and to the participating merchant."

"The discount stretches the senior's purchasing power while the merchant benefits from publicity and purchases made by seniors and their friends and associates," Norton said.

Volunteers working for Community Concern for Senior Citizens began canvassing South San Francisco Jan. 14. Stores now participating include jewelers, restaurants, shoe repair, pet stores, gift shops, locksmiths, and pharmacies.

Participating merchants display a green-and-white decal on their windows depicting a woman and man standing under an umbrella.

Shoppers should ask for the senior discount before the purchase is registered. They also should be prepared to show some type of identification.

The South San Francisco Senior Center, 230 Grand Avenue, has a listing of the participating merchants. A booklet listing all participants is expected to be ready in June.

Daly City to Divide Housing Act Funds

Daly City's City Council will have a public hearing Monday on proposed uses of a $781,000 grant from Housing and Community Development Act funding.

The hearing on the federal funding recommendations will begin at 8 p.m. in the City Hall council chambers.

The proposals, which have undergone scrutiny by the Citizens Advisory Committee on the General Plan and the Planning Commission, are expected to draw a large crowd.

The Planning Commission has recommended allocations of $46,000 to a house painting program; $10,000 to the Anti-Crime League; $250,000 to residential rehabilitation; $290,000 to the proposed multi-purpose center development; $50,000 to Hillside Park development; and $80,000 to Lincoln Park.

The commission also suggested that $40,000 be used for a tot lot near John Daly Boulevard; $15,000 for Bayshore Park development; and $18,000 from previous funding be granted to the Guadalupe Health Center.

Water Causes Molten Metal To Explode, Splatter in SSF

Water somehow getting into a large container of molten iron is thought to have caused an explosion Thursday that splattered hot metal around the inside of the Bay City Iron Foundry plant and caused several small fires, according to South San Francisco firemen.

The explosion destroyed the $20,000 unit in the plant at 311 S. Canal St., firemen said.

Firemen were called at 12:45 p.m. and reported finding several spot fires among cardboard and packing materials and molten iron spilled on the floor. Since more water would have caused more explosions, the burning materials were isolated and allowed to burn out, firemen said. They stood by for about 45 minutes until the metal had cooled enough to not be dangerous.

Le Pacini

It's time to get off Spec Richardson's back. In acquiring Vida Blue from Oakland he pulled a blockbuster out of the hat; perhaps the most significant Giants trade since they moved to San Francisco.

Richardson not only got one of baseball's better pitchers, but perhaps more important, the psychological ramifications of the trade could be far-reaching.

THIS IS A critical season for the Giants, whether Oakland moves or not (as this is written, that hadn't happened). The front office had to do something spectacular to grab the fans' imagination and prove to fans and players that the Giants want to make moves and are willing to gamble to do it. It can't be denied that Blue's acquisition was spectacular, or that it grabbed fan fancy. Suddenly, the sports talk shows are filled up with baseball again. As to the gamble, more on that a little way down the line.

Needless to say, the timing was perfect, because not only was the trade made five minutes before the inter-league trading deadline, but it came just hours before the San Francisco Park and Recreation Commission met to decide whether or not it would split the schedule with Oakland should the A's move. Blue's signing might have swayed a couple of commission votes on that matter.

Obviously, in grabbing Blue, the Giants grabbed some instant East Bay name identification. And Charley Finley, in getting rid of his only drawing card, gave Coliseum officials one more excuse to move the A's out.

AT THE practical level, the Giants got the potential stopper they've been missing since they gave Gaylord Perry away, and deepened the staff, thus giving themselves a cushion against injuries or arm or ego problems, as well as possibly some good trade surplus for another hitter (Preferably an established center fielder.)

True, the Giants gave up some good young talent, but nothing that was going to help appreciably this year. At this point, the Giants' future is now. They can't worry about developing a team that could end up in Washington or New Orleans.

No doubt pitcher Alan Wirth is a top prospect, claim some, a superstar of the future. He was 15-5 with a 2.87 ERA at Waterbury last year. Bear in mind, though, that the Eastern League is a pitcher's league.

PERHAPS a bigger prospect is lefty hurler John Johnson, a strikeout pitcher who was 14-2, 3.38 with Fresno last season, in a hitter's league. Phillip Huffman (7-3, 5.24, Great Falls) also has been called a real prospect.

As of now, it isn't known who that "player to be named later" is, though it has been said that it could be recently-acquired infielder Mario Guerra, who has hit .284 and .283 in his last two seasons in the American League. I wouldn't like to see him go, but on the other hand, he is a utility player.

The vets the Giants cast away should represent minor losses at most. True, Gary Thomasson played a lot last year and compiled some impressive slugging credentials, but he would have had to improve tremendously on defense to be a plus, and many of his long balls and RBIs last year came in games that were already decided one way or the other.

YOUNG Gary Alexander is a slugging prospect, for sure, but he had enough deficiencies as a catcher not to press regular Mark Hill immediately. There was talk last year he eventually could be Willie McCovey's successor but the acquisition of the established Mike Ivie, who wants to play only first base, negated that theory. And it appeared evident that Alexander wouldn't easily played a lot and a young slugger must play to develop.

Dave Heaverlo had his best season last year and word is that management believes semi-rookie right hander Tommy Toms, who sparked at Phoenix last year, to be capable of taking Heaverlo's place.

There are some sobering thoughts about the Blue deal. The Giants now claim to have possibly the best pitching staff in the majors. But don't forget that Blue, John Montefusco, Jim Barr and Lynn Mc Glothen all had the worst years of their careers last season. And Randy Moffitt has had better years.

HOW WILL The Count's ego mix with Blue's? Montefusco is no longer the number one man. Can he live without the press and fans' full attention? Will he brood?

No one's mentioned it, but will Blue be able to adjust to Candlestick's un-natural turf? There are only two fake fields in the American League. For that matter, if the Giants split their schedule with Oakland, won't they be losing some of that home court advantage, especially the infielders, who will have to make continual adjustments in style to play the two vastly different surfaces? And might it not alter the patterns of some of the pitchers?

Finally, the Giants in theory could end up without Blue and minus some of their brightest prospects if Blue wins a suit he has pending against Finley which, if he wins, immediately would make him a free agent. If I were Bob Lurie I'd give myself some insurance by telling Vida he can name his own price — if he drops that suit.

MISSION HIGH School's 29th annual Athletic Alumni Association dinner and drunk is right around the corner. In fact, it's Friday at the Seven Hills, beginning with drinking at 7 and dinner at 8, or any combination thereof, mix 'em or match 'em.

Master of ceremonies this year, if anybody happens to be listening to him, is supervisor and former San Francisco Chief of Police Al Nelder, as the Athletic Alumni will be honoring all former and present Mission coaches. That would include such grand oldies from the past as Alex Schwarz, Dutch Elston, George Wolfman, Lloyd Leith; Orran Qualls and whoever else you can remember.

Naturally, all former Mission athletes — or even those who thought they were — are invited to attend. Reservations will not be necessary. Pay your $7 (includes tax and tip and the usual fine meal, courtesy of Seven Hills owner and Mission Alumnus Angelo Lima) at the restaurant.

ONE MISSION athlete who won't be in attendance as usual this year is Yotz Klotovich, who recently died after a long illness.

Klotovich is probably the only truly legendary high school athlete in San Francisco history. A raging full-back who later attended St. Mary's, Yotz is Klotovich, who recently died after a long illness.

Klotovich is probably the only truly legendary high school athlete in San Francisco history. A raging full-back who later attended St. Mary's, Yotz is the only high school athlete from any era, any sport, I know of whose name would illicit immediate recognition from any sports fan, no matter what his high school affiliation, if the person were at least 35-40 years old.

There were others, of course, who went on to college and/or professional sports, and gained greater name recognition than Klotovich. But NONE gained the almost mythical fame that Yotz did as high school athletes.

Camino Fails to Exact Revenge

By JOHN MURPHY

El Camino High's baseball team would have dearly loved to turn the tables on Sacred Heart in this year's South San Francisco Kiwanis Club Invitational.

Last season El Camino won the Central Coast Section championship and went 28-1 overall. The lone blemish on Camino's record was a one-sided loss to Sacred Heart in the semi-finals of the Easter tourney.

El Camino had Sacred Heart on the ropes Thursday morning at Orange Park as the Colts mounted a 4-2 lead after five innings. But SH rallied for a single run in the sixth and three more in the seventh to win 6-4.

The Irish will now attempt to win their second consecutive SSF Invitational Saturday at 2 p.m. against South San Francisco.

It was poor fielding that betrayed the Colts in the seventh inning. Camino infielders made three errors to open the gates for the hungry Irish.

With one away Mark Evans, who had relieved starter Frank Vasquez in the sixth, walked Serge Etcheverry on a borderline

3-2 pitch at the knees. Neither Evans nor Colt catcher Merlin Nelson was particularly thrilled with the call.

Irish speedster Matt Gallegos followed with a sharp infield grounder that should have at least resulted in a force at second base (it would have been difficult to double up Gallegos). But the throw to second was missed and SH still had a fighting chance.

A wild pitch moved Etcheverry and Gallegos up, and the Colts moved their infield in on the edge of the grass to try to cut off the run at the plate.

Leo Baldocchi then sent a shot at Camino second baseman Rob Canepa. But Canepa didn't feel that he could get the runner at the plate and went to first instead. That made it 4-4 with two away.

Angel Sanchez followed with a clutch line drive double down the left field line to score Gallegos and SH led 5-4.

Camino had another chance to end the inning when Sanchez tried to steal third and Nelson made a perfect throw to the bag. But the throw was dropped and Sanchez eventually came home on another infield error.

Sacred Heart scored single runs in the first and second innings to take a 2-0 lead, but Camino bounced back with a run in the bottom of the second and another in the third to tie it up.

The Colts knocked ace SH righthander Bill Scudder out of the box in the fourth inning with a two-run rally high lighted by an RBI single by designated hitter Tony Maffei and a run-scoring triple by Danny O'Regan.

Gallegos, who relieved lefthander Ken Viola in the sixth, was credited with the win for the Irish. Evans took the loss for Camino.

In a couple of consolation bracket games Carlmont blasted San Carlos 22-2 and Vallejo routed Balboa 17-1. Each game went only five innings because of a time limit.

Steve Smith and Curt Foinini paced Carlmont with three RBI's apiece.

Sacred Heart: 110 001 3-6 5 5
El Camino: 011 200 0-4 5 3
Scudder: Viola (4), Gallegos (6-W) and Lou Baldocchi: Vasquez, Evans (6-L), Vasquez (7) and Nelson (3b) — O'Regan (EC), 2b — Etcheverry (SH), Sanchez (SH).

Unbeaten Terra Nova Wins Tourney Title

Terra Nova High's baseball team snapped a Riordan win streak and extended one of its own Thursday at Marchbank Park as the Tigers edged the Crusaders 2-1 to capture the Daly City Invitational.

Riordan had a string of tournament victories going, having won the D.C. Invitational the past two years.

But crafty righthander Dave Bancroft silenced the Crusader bats with a neat five-hitter and got just enough offensive support from his teammates to pull through.

The victory upped Terra Nova's current win skein to nine without a loss this season.

Leadoff batter Dava Luhrs got TN started on the right track in the first inning with a bunt single.

He stole second base, but remained there until Mike

Diaz plated him with a two-out line drive single.

The Tigers weren't exactly ripping the cover off the ball, either, against Crusader righthander Joe Coggan. But TN did manage to scrape for another run in the fifth.

Dan Ernst drew a base-on-balls and then was sacrificed to second by Luhrs. Greg Miles grounded out to second, advancing Ernst to third, and then Mike Mooney brought the letter home with a bloop single to center field.

Riordan, which had been quiet during the first six innings, had some fireworks going in the seventh. Bancroft walked John Calonic, and John Castiglioni also reached base, on a dying equal single to right field.

Joe Torrisse deftly sacrificed both runners up and then Bill Ryan lofted a fly ball to medium deep right field which was caught for the second out of the inning. But Riordan pinch runner Ben Parodi tagged up and scored, making it 2-1.

Bancroft then bore down against Coggan and got his pitching adversary out on a called third strike to end the game.

In a preliminary contest, tourney host Westmoor got three hits and four RBI's from Greg Eagleton to defeat San Rafael for third place, 7-1.

Terra Nova: 100 010 0-2 5 0
Riordan: 000 000 1-1 5 1

Skyline Student Wins Golden Gloves Title

Thanks to Anastasio Zografos, San Mateo County had a champion in the 48th annual Golden Gloves tournament at San Francisco's Civic Auditorium.

A record crowd of 9,013 — eclipsing the old record of 8,791, set in 1976 — saw Zografos of San Bruno win a split decision over James Loring of Tulare in their 178-pound novice division title match Thursday night.

The only other county boxer who had earned a berth in the finals, Barry Thomas of East Palo Alto, was defeated by Reno's Mark Pacheco in the 106-pound senior division bout.

Loring rocked Zografos, a Skyline College student who trained under Mills High physical education instructor Don Hibson, with several shots to the head in the first round, and Zografos looked to be in serious trouble.

But Zografos fought gamely back, becoming the aggressor and scoring with some body shots before the end of the first round as the crowd came to life and roared its approval.

Zografos and Loring both tired noticeably as the match went on, but Zografos generally stayed on the offensive. Loring scored with some shots to the head, but Zografos connected both to the head and body. The announcement of the judges' decision was met with a partial standing ovation for Zografos.

"I was surprised it was a split decision," said Hibson, who had also served as Zografos' cornerman when Zografos knocked out Daniel Francisco in their semifinal bout Monday night. "I thought 'Tasos' clearly won the second and third rounds. It was the shots to the body that did it for him."

"I wasn't surprised (that it was a split decision)," said an ecstatic Zografos, who was the only fighter to win a bout in his division, because it had only three entrants and Loring drew a bye in the opening round. "That first round was tough."

"Man, I hope my City College (of San Francisco) coach saw this — he told me I wasn't any good. Mr. Hibson helped me a lot."

Jack Padia of Cotati, David Garcia of Santa Clara and Jim Hole of Oakland were chosen as the tournament's outstanding boxers in their respective divisions.

Padia decided Curtis Simmons of Oakland for the 156-pound senior division championship. Garcia decided Jimi Sosa of San Francisco for the 119-pound junior division title and Hole outscored Tyrone King of Oakland in an exciting 156-pound novice title match.

The tournament's senior division winners will all go on to compete in the national Amateur Athletic Union championships in Biloxi, Miss., in late April.

Mound Gamble Pays Off

Irish Down SSF for Title

By JOHN MURPHY

Times Correspondent

Sacred Heart's baseball team came out smelling like a rose in the South San Francisco Kiwanis Club prep baseball tournament Saturday.

The Irish, sparked by the late-inning heroics of Bill Scudder, edged South San Francisco 2-1 at Orange Park to capture their second consecutive SSF tourney crown.

In the third-place game, Rio Americano blanked El Camino 5-0.

SH was in deep trouble in the sixth inning when, with the score tied 1-1, SSF's pitcher Jim Dunn led off with a double and Ken Herrle sacrificed him to third.

Irish coach Steve Franceschi, who apparently thinks he's the West Catholic Athletic League's answer to Tommy Lasorda, then pulled off a gem.

Franceschi's peculiar sideline antics had been irritating the partisan SSF fans all game long. But the first-year SH mentor really got the crowd buzzing when he intentionally walked Greg Romer and Jerry Pirillo and then replaced starting pitcher Ken Viola.

It was a bold move to load the bases and then take out Viola, who had been pitching splendidly up until that point. But Scudder is the type of player who can make a coach look good, and he did just that after relieving Viola.

South City coach Bob Brian ordered a squeeze bunt against the side-winding Scudder. But the bunt attempt was missed and Dunn got hung up between third base and home plate. He was tagged out for the second out of the inning.

The Warriors still had men on second and third but Scudder came up with a big strikeout to end the threat.

Scudder was also the hero offensively for the Irish, as he produced the game-winning hit in the seventh inning.

With one away Tony Welch, SH's power-hitting junior outfielder, lashed a single into left field. Welch advanced to second on an infield out and then came home on Scudder's looping base hit over third base.

Sacred Heart's ace righthander then shut South City down in the bottom of the seventh with three straight strike-outs.

The victory was SH's 14th in 15 outings this season. The Irish have now won the SSF crown five times in the 24-year history of the tournament.

It was a tough defeat for Dunn, who pitched his usual steady game. The stocky righthander gave up only seven hits against the heavy-hitting Irish while fanning 10 and walking one.

Dunn and Jerry Selvitella had two hits apiece to lead South City's attack. Selvitella knocked in SSF's only run with an RBI single in the fifth inning.

Sacred Heart: 000 100 1-2 7 1
South City: 000 010 0-1 6 1
Sacred Heart — Viola, Scudder (6-W) and Lou Baldocchi: SSF — Dunn (L) and Andersen (2b — Dunn (SSF).

El Camino: 000 000 0-0 4 1
Rio Americano: 000 500 5-5 9 3
El Camino — Buckwold, Evans (3-L), Dominican (4), McAdam (4), Bigham (3) and Vasquez. Rio Americano — Lumley, Jacovetta (4-W), White (6) and Kenner. 2b — Keaton (RA).

Girls All-County Teams Chosen

Four seniors, Liz Bruno, Cindy Galarza, Penny Stack, Donna Imsand, and juniors Becky Myers and Carol Rische top the 1978 San Mateo Times All-County Girls Basketball Team selected on the basis of their all-around performance this past season.

The 6-0 Bruno and 5-8 Stack were frontcourt mainstays for Mercy of Burlingame's South Peninsula League championship team that went on to the Central Coast Section playoffs.

Bruno, possibly the best defensive center in the county last year, grabbed 18.5 rebounds per game in league play while hitting on 52 percent of her shots for an 11.10 average. Stack, a versatile, dynamic floor leader, led Mercy with an 11.5 scoring average while averaging 11.8 rebounds in league play.

Galarza, Hillsdale's 5-9½ power forward and a returning All-County selectee, averaged 20.50 points and 11.35 rebounds per contest.

Westmoor's 5-8 forward Donna Imsand set a school scoring record with a 34-point performance against El Camino this season, and averaged 19.1 points and 11 rebounds a game.

Becky Myers, Terra Nova's running, dead-eye 5-7 guard (selected for the second year in a row), led the North Peninsula League in scoring by popping at a 21.07 pace while helping TN to the NPL title and a CCS appearance.

Crestmoor's fluid Carol Rische was the county's top rebounder with a 20.29 boards per game season average. The 5-10 Rische sank 58 percent of her shots for 20.08 points per game. While pushing the Falcons to the Mid-Peninsula League crown.

TIMES ALL-COUNTY FIRST TEAM
Liz Bruno, 6-0, Mercy senior center; Cindy Galarza, 5-9½, Hillsdale senior forward; Donna Imsand, 5-8, Westmoor senior forward; Becky Myers, 5-7, Terra Nova junior guard; Carol Rische, 5-10, Crestmoor junior forward; Penny Stack, 5-8, Mercy senior forward.

Gold Medals for SSF Brothers

Junior division gold medal winners don't go on to the Nationals in Golden Gloves competition, so the Tavake brothers will stay home in South San Francisco and keep the gold polished for a year.

Next year it may be the seniors — and a trip. Billy Tavake Jr., who won the 165-pound gold in this week's Gloves competition at San Francisco's Civic Auditorium, and older brother Raymond, who took the 178-pound title, certainly did well enough to think positively about the future.

Billy, in particular, had a strong start, knocking out his first opponent in 34 seconds of the first round and his second in 54 seconds of the first round.

He fought his third bout with a somewhat injured left hand, and his fourth with a cut above the eye, taking decisions each time.

The brothers, managed by Manuel Romero of San Bruno, trained at Newman's Gym in San Francisco.

Drug Case Ruling Upsets Prosecutors

By RICK SULLIVAN

The prosecution of 53 alleged narcotics dealers named in a secret grand jury indictment and arrested last month in what was promoted as the biggest coordinated drug bust in San Mateo County history, was dealt a severe blow Thursday.

Superior Court Judge Gerald E. Ragan ruled that each of the suspects is entitled to a "post indictment probable cause hearing" to determine if there is enough evidence to bind them over to trial.

The ruling was in response to a motion from a committee of the Private Defender Program.

The effect of the ruling, according to District Attorney Keith Sorenson, is to "render the grand jury impotent... clog" an already crowded criminal court calendar and jeopardize the safety of undercover police officers and informants.

Sorenson announced today that the state attorney general's office is preparing to appeal the decision. The attorney general handles all criminal appeals in this county.

According to Sorenson, indictments issued by the grand jury are based on testimony given in secret proceedings. The testimony essentially is the same as that which would be given as a probable cause or a preliminary hearing. And traditionally when indictments are issued those named and arrested are not subjected to a preliminary hearing but instead are remanded to the Superior Court for trial.

The grand jury proceedings, Sorenson indicated, have saved court time and expense of conducting preliminary hearings.

Deputy District Attorney William Amideo, who is handling many of the drug cases, said the grand jury issued the indictments after only two days of testimony. Sorenson said preliminary hearings for all 53 suspects arrested could take months.

My deputies and witnesses in these cases would have to appear over and over and over again at each hearing for each defendant," said Sorenson. "Judge Ragan's decision renders our grand jury impotent."

This is the first year San Mateo County has impaneled a separate criminal grand jury, members of which were selected at random from throughout the county. In years past a single grand jury, whose members were selected by the judges, handled both civil and criminal matters.

Douglas Gray, one of three attorneys of the Private Defenders Program who filed the motion for the hearing, said Thursday, "We believe defendants prosecuted after a grand jury indictment are denied substantial rights given other defendants at preliminary hearings."

He stated the attorneys had "no quarrel" with the grand jury process and disagreed with Sorenson that Ragan's ruling virtually dismantled the jury.

"The grand jury can still serve a useful function," said Gray. "It can take testimony and obtain warrants in secrecy."

Gray added that all defendants should be entitled to public preliminary hearings.

Other attorneys in the Private Defender Program committee are Margaret Kemp and Dek Ketchum. Both Gray and Mrs. Kemp are former deputy district attorneys.

Ragan's ruling comes almost two weeks after Sheriff John McDonald had verbally attacked Superior Court judges for releasing most of the suspected drug dealers on their own recognizance and setting low bail for the remainder.

Nearly all the reputed drug traffickers are back on the streets.

The sheriff had berated specifically Judge Frank Piombo, stating that his order of release of the suspects was "wasting the taxpayers' money and police officers' time." McDonald further expressed concern for the safety of undercover narcotics agents and informants who had participated in the arrests of the suspects.

The sheriff's office and police departments in 12 Peninsula cities arrested alleged drug dealers named in the indictments in a series of raids that began Feb. 23.

Although 53 suspects were taken into custody, law enforcement authorities confiscated only $60,000 (street value) worth of narcotics, including several ounces of heroin, and lesser amounts of cocaine.

Cause of Slayer's Death Told

A preliminary finding of death from internal hemorrhaging was made today by San Mateo County Coroner Paul Jensen after an autopsy Thursday on the body of Carl Arthur Casperson, found Wednesday night expired on the cot of his detaining cell at Chope Community Hospital.

Jensen said that the autopsy revealed two immediate conditions, first that a cyst had broken loose from the pancreas and caused a stomach hemorrhage that aspirated and filled the lungs, and second, that Casperson had an inflamed appendix.

The appendix had not burst, however, he said.

Jensen said that further tests are under way, but will take some time to evaluate.

Casperson, 30, was in restraining straps, Jensen said, but not in any such way as to contribute to his death.

Sheriff's Sgt. Gilbert Devincenzi told The Times that the straps were padded leather, attached to the ankles and to one wrist. There was about two feet of play in the straps, he said, so that the prisoner could turn on his side but not leave the cot.

Devincenzi said that Casperson had refused to talk to a private psychiatrist at 7:45 p.m. He was approached by a nurse and a deputy at 9:55 p.m. and found lying face down on the cot and unwilling to take the medication, telling them to "come back in 10 minutes."

When a nurse looked in about 20 minutes later, he said, she found Casperson lying face down with his arms folded under his face and shoulder area and looking "strange." Attempts to revive him by a Chope emergency crew failed.

Study Panel Says End Property Tax Support of Schools

Passage of the Jarvis-Gann initiative won't necessarily curtail local government, according to the tax study committee of the San Mateo County Coalition of Concerned Citizens.

The committee found that more than enough money would be available to fund local government if educational costs no longer are funded with property tax.

One member of the committee, Hazel Campbell of Pacifica, said ending the funding of schools by property taxes would re-enforce the Serrano-Priest decision, which said it is inequitable for rich school districts to have better programs than poor ones.

Mrs. Campbell pointed out that the state of Hawaii funds its educational system with state and federal money and no property tax dollars. The committee has sent for information from Hawaii.

Vince Muzzi, a Millbrae resident and chairman of the CCC tax study committee, stressed that neither the CCC or the committee has taken an official stand on Proposition 13. He said the committee believes that ending the funding of education with property tax funds is one rational approach to the initiative, in the event that it does pass.

He defined the CCC as "a group of business, labor and interested citizens who try to achieve balance between requirements for economic growth and environmental concerns."

"We took on this fact-finding task for the Coalition because there's an awful lot of smoke that's developed over Jarvis," Muzzi said.

He added that, in his opinion, limiting the use of property tax dollars to account for an average of 55.84 percent of property tax dollars in San Mateo County.

Good morning, good cooks.
There is no doubt about it — milk is an everyday food. Because it belongs to one of the basic four food groups, milk has an important place in a well-balanced daily diet. Almost everyone including weight watchers can benefit from milk. In fact, nourishing whole milk is an excellent food for dieters because it gives great nutritional value for the calories.

One of the most delicious entrees to make with milk is quiche. Here is an unusual version that's low in calories but high in interesting flavor. The basic ingredients of milk and eggs are combined with chopped water chestnuts, parmesan cheese and a variety of selected seasonings. By baking in individual casseroles there's no need for a crust and the calories are a modest 256 per portion. Serve the quiche with a green salad and fresh fruit for a satisfying yet calorie-saving luncheon or supper.

LOW CALORIE QUICHE

- 1 (8 1/2 oz.) can water chestnuts
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 5 eggs
- 1/4 cup chopped green onion
- 1/4 cup minced parsley
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
- 1/2 teaspoon basil, crumbled
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 cup grated parmesan cheese

Drain and chop water chestnuts. Divide evenly into four (10-ounce) individual oven-proof casseroles or bakers. Combine the 1 1/2 cups milk, five eggs, fourth cup each chopped green onion and parsley, two tablespoons flour, three-fourth teaspoon salt, half teaspoon each, basil and tarragon, and fourth teaspoon pepper. Pour into casseroles. Sprinkle with one tablespoon parmesan cheese.

Bake in 375-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes or until set in centers. Makes four servings.

Double-Parking Assault Goes to Trial

A June 14 jury trial has been scheduled for a South San Francisco man accused of assaulting another man during an altercation over a double-parked vehicle.

Bertram D. Gray, 34, of 350 Railroad Ave., had entered a not guilty plea in Northern Judicial District Municipal Court.

Gray is charged with stabbing Vernon Dean, 34, of San Francisco on March 12.

Police reported following the incident that Dean apparently double-parked his vehicle on Linden Avenue near Grand Avenue at about 9:30 p.m. March 12.

Shortly after that, Gray allegedly pulled behind Dean's car and began honking his horn. Police said an argument followed and ended with Dean being stabbed in the head.

TOTAL MARKET COVERAGE

THE TIMES & THE SOUTH POST

The most effective, efficient means of delivering your advertising message to your customers and potential customers in the heart of San Mateo County.

This is how it works: As an advertiser you get the full 45,000 circulation of The Times or, in the case of preprinted advertising sections, The Times' coverage you select, plus 25,000 circulation of The South Post delivered to non-subscribers of The Times in San Mateo, Foster City, Belmont, San Carlos and Redwood Shores. A total of 51,000 unduplicated circulation in the Total Market Coverage Area (82% penetration of the 61,775 households) and 20,000 circulation of The Times outside the Total Market Coverage Area.

TOTAL MARKET COVERAGE AREA

ADVERTISER BENEFITS

Amphlett Printing Company's new TMC plan provides unduplicated high household penetration (82% initially, to be increased as plan expands) that combines the area's most widely read and most frequently used for shopping daily newspaper with a well read, established and accepted weekly newspaper that offers unduplicated household coverage.

This TMC plan offers more than just distribution, it offers proven readership. The Times and The Post have developed and maintained readership by producing the best combination of an excellent editorial product and more local advertising (the second highest read feature of newspapers) than any other newspaper or newspaper combination available in San Mateo County.

NOTE: The Post's unduplicating computerized distribution system began November 16, and will be expanded until all routes in the Total Market Coverage Area have been revised. Circulation of The Post, when the TMC plan is completed, is projected to be between 25,000 and 30,000, which will provide between 80%-90% TMC household penetration. Plans are now being made to expand the TMC area into Burlingame. The non-duplicating computerized distribution system will be used for delivery of the Recorder-Progress to non-subscribers of The Times.

RECORD PRICE

Mrs. Paul Saroff of South San Francisco poses with the Grand Champion Lamb of the 32nd annual Junior Grand National Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace. She paid a record $11 a pound topping the old record of $10. At left is the lamb's owner, Frank Farao, 13, of Arroyo Grande. The champion Hampshire was donated by the Saroffs to the San Mateo County 4-H program.

'Granny' Held in Case

Pacific police and sheriff's undercover agents raided a cottage in Pacifica Friday after police sources began receiving tips that a 60-year-old woman known as "Granny" was a major source of methamphetamines. Sheriff's Sgt. Michael Dow disclosed today.

He identified "Granny" as Amy Bonita Stewart, 60, of 1676 Toledo Court, Pacifica, who was taken into custody along with her daughter, grandson and another woman.

County: No Tax Delay

Faced with a wave of citizen unrest, the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors this morning voted 5-0 to have the county assessor's office mail out assessment notices next month.

A standing-room-only gathering of 80 persons confronted the supervisors in their Redwood City meeting hall to demand that the officials approve the mailing.

Previously, the assessor, Jack Estes, had announced that he would wait until after the June 6 election before mailing the notices.

Proposition 13, the controversial Jarvis-Gann property tax initiative, is on the June 6 ballot. There had been strong feeling that holding off on the mailing would amount to an election ploy to conceal new, high assessments in the county.

Estes has denied that. He has said his rationale for desiring to postpone the mailing would be to prevent a double cost situation. To mail out one assessment before the election and another after would cost an estimated $80,000, Estes has explained.

One mailing, however, would cost half that. This morning, the supervisors, under pressure from their constituents agreed that the county would pay the price necessary for a potential double mailing.

If Prop. 13 is approved, Estes has said, a second set of notices would be necessary.
